"A field trip is one of the best tool that we can use to provide every student with real world experience and they are able to access and environments that are not available at school"

The students boarded the bus with all the enthusiasm to go to the field trip.

When they reached the premises they were awestruck by looking at the models of the ancient houses, a village set up and tools used for occupation. They also witnessed a folk performances of Parai Aattam, Mayil Aattam of South India ,Shadow show and Bullock cart ride . Volunteers from the Museum helped the students to understand the setup and the events as they were walking by.

They learned about different kinds of houses – including weavers' and potters'. The brilliant sarees hung in the weaver's house and watching the potter making pot by just moulding the clay on a wheel was indeed a learning experience for them.

Children enjoyed walking into the houses which were typical of south Indian states. The most exciting part of the field trip was the bullock cart ride and pottery making session . It was a memorable journey for them.
